Dr. Claxton Predicts "Fiercer Democracy"

Children Now in School Will Live in City of Ten Millions. He Tells Teachers-Warns Against Instruction in "Cheap Tricks."

probably live some day in a city of grade and high school teacher, by deep million inhabitants, many of them Adams Puffer, director of the Beacon ten million inhabitants, many of them will live in cities of more than one million, and a comprehensive vocational training is needed to fit them for a "fiercer democracy," said Dr. Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, in addressing the Washington Teachers' Institute today.

Before an audience that packed the First Congregational Church, he con-trasted the complexities of modern life, both rural and metropolitan, with conwhich he said must be met by advanced methods of education.

Not Teaching "Tricks."

We are not trying to teach the children a few cheap tricks that will en-able them merely to go out and make a profit for some employer," said Dr. Adapt Education to the Needs of Life."
Instead we want to give them more reedom. We want them to have a liberal education that embraces the flow and girls. Mr. Puffer said that he interviewed 200 men, and found half of them dissatisfied with their vocations. He estimated the ability of the individual to problem the ability of the individual to problem of vocational-training is common of vocation of vocation of vocation of vocation. The institute will close with a surface of the vocation of

"Instead we want to give them more freedom. We want them to have a liberal education that embraces the iundamental science of their vocation. "We have almost suddenly come to realize that the Commonwealth depends on the ability of the individual to produce. American industry is becoming more and more democratic, and the problem of vocational-training is coming to be one of the fundamentals in our school life.

"We are realizing also that the children of one occupation have just as much right to learn the fundamentals of one calling as those of another. Heretofore we have paid special attention to the professions. The pupils who were to be doctors or lawyers or teachers were given the advantage. Today we are offering the same opportunities to those who are to lay pavements, build houses, till the soil, or follow industrial callings." Six-Year Course.

Dr. Claxton was roundly applauded when he said that the courses of study when he said that the courses of study should be rearranged to provide a six-year course in the grade schools and a six-year course in the high schools. Such a change was aiready imminent in several leading cities, he said, and was eventually inevitable. The speaker further said that he strongly favored a universal high school education, and that 20 per cent of the youth of the country now entered high school, where the percentage was from 5 to 7 per cent not many years ago. ot many years ago.
